DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 50 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

It is not clear which protective semiconductor device operates as a source follower.

Claims 47, 52-54 recite the limitation "the integrated circuit technology". There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 47-49, 52-54, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Chan (6,025,742)

Chan (Fig. 2) discloses a driver circuit comprising: a first amplifier comprising series combination of a first semiconductor device (29) and a second semiconductor device (30); a second amplifier comprising series combination of a third semiconductor device (31) and a fourth semiconductor device (32); resistors (34 and 35) located between the first semiconductor device (29) and the second semiconductor device (30); and resistors (36 and 37) located between the third semiconductor device (31) and a fourth semiconductor device (32), wherein the combination of resistors can be read as a first and second integrated back-matching resistor networks respectively; wherein the reference circuit having peak to peak voltage swing between output (see lines 16-20).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 2, 3, 56 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chan.

Regarding claims 2, 3, 56, Chan discloses the claimed invention except for selecting resistance value to match a desired expected input impedance. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to change to values of the resistors in order for it to match the input impedance, since it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 55, 57, 58 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

Claims 55, 57, 58 are allowed over the prior art because none of the prior art disclosed or suggested showing the particular structure and/or operation recited in these claims namely: a parallel combination of a first resistor in claim 55 and method for protecting a corresponding semiconductor device when the corresponding semiconductor device is idle in claims 57, 58.
